When registering for the SAT, remember to input the eligibility code of 9999 to ensure that your score is reported to the NCAA eligibility center / clearinghouse

Fee waivers for ACT or SAT:

See your guidance counselor to determine eligibility for a fee waiver based upon financial need.

Becoming eligible for NCAA athletics:

The NCAA suggests you register the beginning of your junior year at www.eligibilitycenter.org and complete a new account. You will also need to have an official transcript sent and submit a $60 processing fee. If you were eligible for a fee waiver for the SAT or ACT, an official from your high school will need to set up your account online

RECRUITING GUIDELINES:

Before September 1, Junior Year: Coaches can only send you sport brochures, questionnaires, and NCAA education information. You are, however, allowed to call coaches; they just can't call you back. (Be aware of this if you intend to leave a voicemail message.) Any meeting with coaches must take place on campus.

After September 1, Junior Year: NCAA recruiting guidelines become slightly less stringent at this point. Coaches are now allowed to send all kinds of information about their school. They can even send personalized letters. In addition, coaches can now initiate email contact with you.

July 1, between Junior and Senior Year: Although this date varies slightly by division, this is generally the date after which college coaches can call you. NCAA recruiting guidelines relax even more after this point, as college coaches are finally allowed to contact you in person off the college campus.

Senior Year: During the senior year, NCAA recruiting guidelines reach their most relaxed state. You can have as many as five NCAA official visits to college campuses after the first day of your senior year. These visits cannot last longer than 48 hours. Before you can make a visit, a coach must have a copy of both your high school transcript and an official copy of either your SAT or ACT scores.
